Contact YouCanSubmit to discuss voice-over, multimedia and podcast production options and applications. Let's explore the possibilities and potential that our voice-over production services can add to your online and offline media campaigns.

- Consolidate your online presence and stay ahead of the competition with professional voice-overs. Our multimedia production specialists can narrate and produce your podcasts, audio books, ebooks and videos etc. right through to the end product.

- Choose from a flexible range of services including full service production, character voices, music, songs, jingles and sound effects for e.g. promotions, commercials and power point presentations etc. Talk to us about other integrated web marketing solutions.

- Convey a professional image through your audio business communications.

Add polish to your screencasts, online video or audio tutorials and courses. We pride ourselves on professional voice-overs with high production values and a quality end product.

- Increase brand recognition and market reach through a range of media channels. Today's consumers and clients demand and appreciate choice, convenience and ease of access. Build loyalty and business relationships with a client centered approach.

- Offer options for clients with specific needs, preferences or time constraints. Some non native English speakers or visually impaired clients may prefer to listen to the podcast version on its own, or in conjunction with an ebook.

- Take advantage of innovative new media and internet marketing techniques to reach a broader range of prospective clients.

Demonstrate that your business is proactive with new technologies and online media approaches.

- Provide value added products and services by offering free, paid or subscription based audio versions of your articles, blog posts, ebooks, white papers, reports and case studies.

- Increase your income and business credibility with print and audio information products designed especially for sale. Our professional writers are all native English speakers, and can write any materials required for online or other media. Our voiceover and multimedia specialists will convert these to high-end audio products.

- Complement your online media marketing with offline voice-overs and audio services for radio, television, commercials, business presentations, phone messages, welcome messages etc.

- Media Production means high quality output and requires experienced professionals. We provide broadcast ready production with the necessary elements to take your business to the next level.

- Already have your voice talent (s) and just need your commercial or podcast produced? We provide in-house production for businesses just like yours across the country and abroad.
